PROFESSIONAL ENDORSEMENTS FOR DR. AINSLIE

Rico Ainslie is a trail blazer and a model for all of us in his way of engaging urgent social problems psychoanalytically. His low keyed and modest demeanor belies the boldness and incisiveness of his work. His presentation is not to be missed.—Neil Altman, Ph.D., Author, The Analyst in the Inner City: Race, Class and Culture through a Psychoanalytic Lens. Second edition.

Rico Ainslie's work is remarkable: he takes us inside the reality of human suffering, and exposes the human predicament which lies at the margins of our culture. In the process, he links depth psychology to social activism, and expands our empathy and concern.—Sue Grand, Ph.D., Author, The Reproduction of Evil: A Clinical and Cultural Perspective and The Hero in the Mirror: From Fear to Fortitude.

Program Description

Dr. Ricardo Ainslie's presentation will be organized around two themes: immigration and the psychology of a hate crime and its impact on a community.

The morning session will explore the psychology of immigration through clinical case material as well as through Ainslie's ethnographic and film work in which he engages the immigrant experience. Much of this work will draw from psychoanalytic theorists such as Winnicott, Volkan, and Akhtar, among others. He will also screen his 30-minute film, Looking North: Mexican Images of Immigration, to help us understand some of the inner voices that immigrants carry with them when they leave home.

The afternoon portion of the presentation will focus on the 1998 murder of James Byrd in Jasper, Texas. Byrd was dragged to death behind a pickup truck by white supremacists, a hate crime that shook the nation. This presentation will explore the impact of the crime on the East Texas community where it occurred as well as the psychology of Bill King, presently on Texas' Death Row for masterminding the crime. King is the subject of Ainslie's 2004 award-winning book Long Dark Road: Bill King and Murder in Jasper, Texas.

Learning Objectives

- Participants will be able to identify cultural mourning and other dimensions of the psychology of immigration.
- Participants will be able to analyze how immigrants use cultural elements in a variety of ways, including within the clinical setting.
- Participants will be able to describe the psychology of individuals who commit hate crimes.
- Participants will be able to assess the broader social impact of hate crimes on communities.
- Participants will be able to apply the richness of psychoanalytic concepts to socio-cultural experiences.

Ricardo Ainslie, Ph.D.

Dr. Ricardo Ainslie's work involves a hybrid methodology that draws from psychoanalysis, ethnography, and documentary forms of inquiry to explore a variety of social and cultural topics, such as immigration, communities affected by social change, ethnic conflict, and hate crimes. He uses books, documentary films, and photographic exhibits to capture and depict his subjects. In 2002 the Texas Psychological Association recognized him with its "Outstanding Contribution to Science" award, and in 2009 the APA's Division of Psychoanalysis recognized his work with its "Science Award." Dr. Ainslie was inducted into the prestigious Texas Institute of Letters in 2006.

Dr. Ainslie is a native of Mexico City, Mexico. He earned his Bachelor's degree at the University of California at Berkeley, and his Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology at the University of Michigan. He is currently a Professor in the Department of Educational Psychology at the University of Texas at Austin where he is also affiliate faculty at the Center for Mexican American Studies, the American Studies Program, and the Lozano Long Institute for Latin American Studies.

He is ABPP in Psychoanalysis and affiliate faculty at the Houston-Galveston Psychoanalytic Institute. He also maintains a private practice in psychology and psychoanalysis in Austin.
